Problem Statement

Scheduled Tribe women of reproductive age in the landless households of Arki block face two intertwined challenges: economic vulnerability and a heavy burden of maternal and child undernutrition. Together these hold households within a cycle of poverty and poor health.

These women depend on rain-fed agriculture and forest produce, own little land, and have no stable off-farm income. A majority of pregnant women are anaemic, and child stunting ranks among the highest in the country.

Project Objective

To strengthen the economic independence of 800 Scheduled Tribe women in Arki block while improving the maternal and child nutrition of their households over 24 months.

Activities

Results Framework

Level	Result statement	Indicator	Baseline	Target	Means of verification
Impact	Reduced poverty and malnutrition among ST households	Under-5 stunting prevalence	39.6% (NFHS-5)	Below block baseline	Endline survey
Outcome 1	800 women have increased incomes	Average annual income	To be established	≥50% increase	Income survey
